

Reappraisal Firm Dismissed In Election Aftermath

MONROE COUNTY'S controversial tax equalization program yesterday was tossed into the hands of the Democrats who will assume control of the county board after the first of next year.

This came about as the incumbent Republican majority commissioners voted to terminate a contract with J. L. Jacobs & Co., Chicago, to complete the tax mapping and reappraisal programs.

At the same time, the two GOP commissioners declared that the new Democratic-controlled board should complete the job for less than $15,000—in keeping with campaign arguments.

Voting to fire the Jacobs firm, effective Dec. 21, were Amzi Altomose, who was defeated for re-election, and W. Adolph Rake, who will return to the board next year as the minority member.

Granville Shiffer, the present Democratic minority member, did not vote on yesterday's resolution and had no comment to make last night on the action of his GOP colleagues. Shiffer did not run for re-election this year.

E. B. Tichenor, supervising engineer for Jacobs on the county project, was not available for comment last night.

In their resolution, Rake and Altomose traced the history of the tax equalization program.

They noted that the county contacted all local engineers, including Leo Achterman Jr., son of the Democratic campaign chairman, to see if they would be interested in taking over the mapping phase of the project.

At the same time, the Republican board members recalled, the county asked the Monroe County Real Estate Board to undertake the reappraisal phase of this program.

The fact that neither group agreed to accept the proffered jobs made it necessary for the county to look elsewhere for qualified persons to do this work, the resolution stated.

The county therefore signed a contract with the Jacobs firm on Aug. 1, 1955 under which the company agreed to furnish all necessary services to the county board of assessment for the completion of the tax mapping program and the reappraisal of all taxable properties, except minerals and mineral rights.

The resolution called attention to charges made against the tax program during the recent campaign by Leo Achterman Sr., spokesman for the Democratic Party.

The GOP commissioners said Achterman claimed the county's Republican administration has made the program cost 10 times too much, and, as a result of the program, has left the county bankrupt, for all practical purposes.

Rake and Altomose also contended that a Democratic spokesman circulated a letter throughout the county during the recent campaign which indicated that the entire tax mapping and reappraisal program could be done at a cost of $15,000.

The Republican board members observed that the voters issued a verdict against the program on election day by putting the Democrats into power. They contended, therefore, that the Democrats now have a "duty and obligation" to finish this program for a sum "substantially less than $15,000," since the job is already partially completed.

To this end, the Republican commissioners terminated the Jacobs contract, effective Dec. 21, in compliance with the provision that the county must give 30 days notice of its wish to terminate the agreement.

"The company shall then turn over to the county all maps, prints, tracings, cards and all other work and data obtained by the company to the termination date," the contract reads.

"The county shall pay the company all invoices for services and expenses up to and including the termination date of the contract, after audit and approval thereof by the board of county commissioners," the contract continues.

Democratic charges concerning the tax program led to Rake and Altomose instituting a half-million dollar libel suit against Leo Achterman Sr., during the recent campaign.

Military Plane Crashes With 14 Men Aboard

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 17 (AP)—Nellis Air Force Base said tonight it had been advised 14 persons were missing on a military plane that left Burbank, Calif., for the Nevada proving grounds. Wreckage of the plane was reported to have been sighted near Mt. Charleston, 27 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

Details of the crash were shrouded in secrecy.

The Indian Springs AFB, about 20 miles from the proving grounds, said the plane was to have landed there late today and when it did not a tracer was placed on it.

A few hours later the wreckage was reported sighted.

A rescue crew was making its way on foot into the heavily wooded area, Nellis said. Mt. Charleston is not on the route of any east-west commercial airline.

Names of the missing personnel were withheld.

Auto Insurance Rates Studied For Overcharge

HARRISBURG, Nov. 17 (AP)—The state Insurance Department disclosed today it is conducting an exhaustive study that may show Pennsylvania motorists are being overcharged on their insurance policies.

"We are almost on the verge of the conclusion that auto insurance policies sold in Pennsylvania are improperly rated," Francis R. Smith, state insurance commissioner, said.

He added that such a conclusion "would affect nearly everyone."

Close to 90 per cent of Pennsylvania's 3 1/2 million auto owners hold insurance policies in Pennsylvania.

Dems Move To Restore Harmony

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 (AP)—Democrats moved swiftly today to unify their forces for next year's elections.

The party's National Committee, at the first session of a three-day party meeting, unanimously approved a compromise set of convention rules designed to bury the "loyalty oath" controversy.

And the committee filled out its own ranks by seating four members—including one who was a compromise candidate from Texas, which went Republican in 1952.

But a threat of fresh discord over loyalty in the 1956 convention was voiced by Stephen A. Mitchell, former national chairman who headed the Advisory Committee on Rules.

Loyalty Strengthened

The rules approved and recommended for use at the convention opening Aug. 13 in Chicago included these provisions:

A state party will send delegates to the national convention who are "bona fide Democrats who have the interests, welfare and success of the party at heart." No additional "loyalty pledge" would be required beyond that in the absence of a contest or challenge.

The state party will "assure" that the convention's nominees for president and vice president will appear on the state ballot under the Democratic label.

Shot Wounds Iran Premier

TEHRAN, Iran, Nov. 17 (AP)—An attacker shot and slightly wounded Premier Hussein Ala, 72, in the shah mosque in central Tehran today.

Police quickly captured the gunman and took him to the military governor's office. There he was identified as a Moslem religious fanatic named Mozaffar Ali Zolghadreh, 32, from the village of Khamseh. He said he came here yesterday and "decided to begin a fight against infidels because I feel the Islamic rules are not being properly carried out."

Scotland Yard Is Investigating Its Own Force

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP)—The boss of Scotland Yard said today his legendary police force is investigating itself to find and stamp out any corruption, bribery or theft in its ranks.

Sir John Nott-Bower, the metropolitan police commissioner, denied, however, that officers on the beat, policemen and plainclothes squads were rife with sin and shame. Several London newspapers have charged recently that widespread bribery and corruption exist.

One article claimed that for an that when they raided a house they found fully clothed young ladies just sitting around, instead of "ladies of the evening."

Sir John said it was grossly unjust that the whole police force should be condemned because from time to time a few weaker spirits yielded to temptation.

Wind Gap RD Man Is Killed

EASTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—Wilson V. Meyers, 79, Wind Gap RD, was struck and killed by a car today while walking along Route 512 near his home. Wind Gap is about 12 miles north of here.

Eisenhower, Aides Discuss Roads, Budget

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—An increasingly chipper President Eisenhower today whirled through a series of conferences that sparked hopes for a balanced budget and a vast new highway program.

With assurances from his doctors that he is coming along "most satisfactorily" from his Sept. 24 heart attack, Eisenhower opened his new office in the Gettysburg post office and put in more than two hours in work and conferences. Out of the conferences came:

Assurances from Budget Director Rowland Hughes that he thinks the federal budget can be balanced—although there is no certainty—both for the present fiscal year ending next June 30 and the one starting July 1. Hughes wouldn't say this would mean a tax cut, but most predictions of reduction have been pegged to a balanced budget.

Word from Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks that administration authorities are shying away from special bond financing in the direction of a pay-as-you-go system for a 25-billion-dollar network of interstate highways.

If Eisenhower goes along, it would represent a reversal of his previous support for the bond method. On that, Weeks said he got no indication of what the President would do. Democrats in Congress have fought the bond plan and Weeks' words indicated some grounds for agreement in Congress might be reached.

Reds Demand Admission Of Mongolia

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—Russia's V. V. Kuznetsov served flat notice on the United States today that Outer Mongolia must be admitted to the U.N. with 17 other applicants or Moscow will veto all American-approved candidates.

"The Soviet Union has tried to go along with the admission of 18 members," Kuznetsov said at a specially convened news conference. "It was not easy to agree to some of them. But taking into account the general climate and striving for a solution, the Soviet Union will vote for 18 candidates with one condition, that all be admitted. We categorically refuse to consider any other proposal."

He also refused to agree to any move to postpone a vote on Outer Mongolia and said agreement on all applicants must be reached prior to a Security Council session.

The Soviet first deputy foreign minister thus gave his reply to a statement Sunday by U.S. Chief Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. that Outer Mongolia will not make the grade for membership.

Dulles Confers With Ike On Geneva Failure

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles explored for 85 minutes today the failure of East and West to solve vital differences at the Geneva conferences.

What conclusions they may have reached on where America and the Western Allies go from here in their quest for a just world peace was a secret they shared only with Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.

But there were grounds for believing that Dulles was not entirely pessimistic; that he informed the President he still thinks Russia may consent to unifying Germany on terms agreeable to the West.

To Talk Tonight

Possibly he may say as much publicly tomorrow night in a report to the American people on the Big Four foreign ministers conference in Geneva. But he also is likely to hang squarely on the Russians the failure at Geneva to agree on conditions for a unified Germany, for achieving European security, for disarmament and for increasing East-West contacts.

The secretary outlined to Eisenhower what he has in mind for his radio-TV report, then closeted himself with aides in the Gettysburg hotel to start drafting it.

The President and Dulles will go over the drafts of the address to the nation in another conference in the morning.

The two top men in the State Department arrived here at 4:05 p.m. EST, hopped into a White House limousine, and were driven directly to the President's study from 4:25 until 5:45.

Plane Trouble

Hoover flew back to Washington tonight after the conversations broke up.

The Dulles flight across the Atlantic, to Bermuda, Washington and Gettysburg was something of an adventure for the secretary.

Eisenhower had sent his personal plane, the four-engine C-54, to Geneva to bring Dulles home. One engine went out and it landed at Bermuda on the other three.

A Military Air Transport plane was rushed to Bermuda, while Dulles had what he called "a wonderful swim."

The secretary still was only 12 minutes behind schedule when he reached Washington.

A light, twin-engine Air Force plane ferried Dulles into Gettysburg—for a tricky landing in stiff winds.

AF Brass Marooned

TEXAS TOWER, 110 miles off Cape Cod, Mass., Nov. 17 (AP)—A 50 m.p.h. northwest gale lashing 20-foot seas marooned a party of 30 Air Force officers aboard the nation's first man-made radar island today.

The changes have been put into effect by vaccine manufacturers progressively over the last several months, the Public Health Service said.

Dr. Scheele said vaccine production and release had lagged last month, mainly because of major changes made since May and continuing refinements since then. The lag probably will continue into part of December.

Two Reasons

The report mentions two apparent reasons why some batches of vaccine could contain living virus:

1. Differences in manufacturer's methods of filtering the starting liquid containing live virus, before the viruses are exposed to formaldehyde to kill them all.

Such differences could have permitted some viruses to stick together in bunches, so viruses inside the bunch were not exposed and killed.

Now the liquid must be filtered

Gamble Largely Eliminated From Production Of Polio Vaccine, Surgeon General Declares

By Alton L. Blakeslee
AP Science Reporter

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 17 (AP)—The main reasons for production of some bad polio vaccine last spring have been found and corrected, a special committee of polio experts announced today.

Safe and potent vaccine now can be manufactured more easily in larger amounts, declared Dr. Leonard Scheele, surgeon general of the U.S. Public Health Service, in releasing the report.

He hailed it as "passing a crossroads in the vaccine program."

Won't Happen Again

While all vaccine released for the public since May 26 has been checked out as safe, the new changes mean production can roll ahead with few or no bad batches showing up during manufacture, he said.

"It means it (any bad vaccine) won't happen again," said one expert interpreting the report.

Four Children Perish In Fire

HORSEHEADS, N.Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—Four children perished and a baby-sitter was burned critically today when fire destroyed a one-family dwelling in this Chemung County village.

Three of the victims were children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sawyer, who were at work. They were: Raymond, 4, Patty, 2, and George Francis, 14 months. The fourth was Rebecca Smith, 4, of Elmira.

Mrs. Edna Towner, 31, of Elmira, the baby-sitter, suffered first and second-degree burns. An oil stove in the kitchen apparently exploded while Mrs. Towner was filling it.

West Hints Change Of Strategy

By John M. Hightowers

GENEVA, Nov. 17 (AP)—A thorough reappraisal of Western strategy for dealing with Russia, especially in relation to the future of Germany and Eastern Europe, appears bound to follow the Geneva foreign ministers conference's failure to improve East-West relations.

Russia turned its back on the hopeful promise of the summit conference held here in July and has hardened its whole attitude toward the free world.

Western leaders have an explanation. They believe Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, Communist boss Nikita Khrushchev and Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov discovered after July that their policy of seeking wider contacts and better understanding with the West was creating restlessness and threatening to weaken the internal structure of the Soviet empire.

Russia Reneges

Evidence of the change in Soviet strategy broke upon the Big Four conference on Nov. 8. Molotov had spent the preceding three days in Moscow. When he returned here he promptly announced to the conference that Russia would never accept a unified Germany unless, at a minimum, it preserved communism in East Germany.

Molotov shrugged off Western protests against the shipment of Soviet arms to Egypt and prospective sales of arms to other Arab countries. Even before the foreign ministers meeting began on Oct. 27, it was evidence that whatever relaxing of tensions he might seek in Europe as a result of the summit conference did not apply to the Middle East.

Molotov left here by plane early today for the return trip to Moscow and a report to the Soviet Presidium on his operations at Geneva.

Icy Cold Wave Brings Death To At Least Nine Persons

By The Associated Press

ICY COLD GRIPPED most of the nation yesterday. In some areas snow and hard, chill winds snarled transportation.

At least nine persons were dead in the cold wave as it spread across the northern two-thirds of the country from the Rockies to the Atlantic Seaboard. In the East, the Arctic air dipped from Canada all the way to northern Florida.

A gale whipped the Great Lakes. More than 100 ice-coated freighters raced for shelter. Two ships ran aground in the Detroit River.

The gale force winds dumped up to 10 inches of snow on Michigan's Upper Peninsula and parts of Wisconsin. The storm swept eastward into New York State, where one to five inches of snow blocked highways, toppled trees and caused numerous power failures.

14 Degrees Below

Temperatures were below freezing in most of the northern two-thirds of the country. It was coldest in Montana—a breath-freezing 14 degrees below at Havre, Mont., at noon.

Buffalo, N. Y., noon temperature tumbled from 67 degrees Wednesday to 31 Thursday. Even on the Gulf Coast, New Orleans' temperature dropped in a day from 84 to 57.

The only warm place was central and southern Florida, with readings in the 80s.

The northern and central sections of the West Coast had snow flurries. East of the Rockies snow swirled from the Upper Mississippi Valley eastward through the Upper Great Lakes and New England.

Most precipitation elsewhere was light.

At least three deaths were attributed to the storm in western New York. Thirty schools closed in Erie and Genesee Counties.

About two inches of snow-fell in northwest Pennsylvania.

Truman Says Insurance Tops Health Program

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 17 (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman told the American Public Health Assn. tonight that universal health insurance topped the list of needs in America's public health program.

"No matter what we do to develop medical research and provide for more hospitals and doctors, we must get to the basic need of universal public health insurance," Truman said at the presentation of the Albert Lasker awards for medical achievements. In addition to the universal health insurance, he said, hospital construction must be accelerated, a doctor shortage must be overcome and medical research must be promoted.

H-Explosion Suggested In Peace Quest

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 (AP)—A majority of the Atomic Energy Commission tonight turned thumbs down on one commissioner's proposal for a great world conclave at Eniwetok atoll to witness an explosion of a giant hydrogen bomb.

AEC member Thomas E. Murray pressed the dramatic proposal in a speech tonight in New York, saying the demonstration blast would be a "declaration of American power" and would, spur the quest for world peace.

He proposed that representatives of all nations be convened at the Eniwetok atoll to witness an explosion of a giant hydrogen bomb.

For one thing, he said, this would disabuse Soviet Russia and its ally Red China of any idea that the Soviets have caught up with the United States in developing the awesome power of the atom.

But tonight the other four members of the commission issued a statement rejecting the proposal of Murray. They indicated a belief that, instead of persuading Russia to "an effective system" for atomic arms controls, it might spur the Russians on to press their atomic program.

Argentine CGT Strike Ends

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 17 (AP)—Argentina's new provisional government announced tonight the deposed leaders of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT) have called off the nationwide general strike.

The announcement said the old CGT chiefs "resolved unanimously to cease immediately" the three-day-old walkout.

The strike apparently ended in failure. Aimed at strengthening the hand of labor chiefs who became powerful under ex-President Juan D. Peron, the walkout backfired, sealing their doom and heightening the influence and prestige of the new government.

Income Tax Idea Dropped For Present

HARRISBURG, Nov. 17 (AP)—Gov. Leader today dropped "at this time" a proposed net income tax and said the administration would concentrate on obtaining passage of a manufacturers' excise tax.

"We recognize that we can't buck too many interest groups and the 27 Republican members of the Senate at the same time," the governor told his news conference in cutting out the income levy from the administration's new tax program.

Presentation Monday

Leader said the manufacturers' tax bill would be presented in the Democratic-controlled House Monday, with plans to pass it there by Wednesday. That would turn it over to the Republican-led Senate by Thanksgiving.

The governor said he expected "wails of anguish" from the GOP senators, but told reporters: "I believe enough of them will support a tax program—probably this one to put it through."

The governor said the rate for the manufacturers' excise tax has yet to be decided definitely. He said the administration is "thinking in terms of 3 1/2 per cent," but added the amount would depend on how much the Legislature would cut from business levies he previously sought.

Those levies now before the Legislature would yield an estimated $118 million dollars.

The personal net income levy was considered along with the manufacturers' levy by Democratic leaders in tax conferences in the last week to hammer out a new administration tax program.

Thomas Resigns

At the same time, Leader refused to rule out any form of income tax for the remainder of the current session of the General Assembly. His proposed classified income tax was defeated last August by the Republican-controlled Senate.

The governor also told newsmen that he received and accepted the resignation of William D. Thomas, Sharon florist, from the $15,000-a-year cabinet post of secretary of property and supplies, effective Jan. 1.

Leader immediately named John S. Rice, a member of the Liquor Control Board, to replace Thomas. Rice is a longtime Democratic state leader and was Democratic candidate for governor in 1946. He is a resident of Gettysburg.

Returning to tax matters, Leader said the manufacturers' tax "would not put Pennsylvania industry at a disadvantage in the market in Pennsylvania or out of the state."

State Won't Lose

He said that the manufacturers' tax would be paid by Pennsylvania manufacturers for that part of their production sold within the state.

The tax would be paid on out-of-state products by the jobber or wholesaler bringing the product into the state.

If a retailer or even the ultimate consumer purchased a finished product from some other state, he then would pay the levy, Leader added. At present, he said, plans call for exempting food from the levy with a "sharp limit" on other exemptions.

"We can't go too far with exemptions," he reminded. "We have to be hard-headed about exemptions or we're not going to get the yield we need."

"Hidden" Sales Tax

Asked about criticism of the manufacturers' tax was a hidden sales levy, Leader explained: "If this is the kind of tax Sen. Mahany can view as a sales tax, and we cannot view as a sales tax, a miracle has happened and I'm interested to know where the newspapers will stand on this."

Leader referred to a statement by Sen. Rowland B. Mahany, Republican Senate floor leader, labeling the manufacturers' excise tax a "hidden sales tax."

Mahany and other GOP lawmakers have been seeking a 2 per cent sales tax to balance the state budget.

Fractional Voting Of Democratic Delegates May Be Cleaned Up Soon

When the Democratic National Committee meets in Chicago one of the issues to come up will be that of fractional votes for delegates to the national convention, a matter of considerable interest to those who see nothing but useless delay in convention procedure because of the vote splintering. Those hardy spectators, who have sat through a Democratic convention, watched it on TV or listened to it on the radio, know how annoying it can be when a state delegation has to be polled to decide the totals, for some states always send more delegates than the state has votes, with certain of them casting only one-half or even a one-third vote each.

Past Performance Has Proved That Women In Politics Should Be Heard

One of the newsworthy stories to come out of the recent meeting of Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women was a stern demand by the ladies for a greater role in party councils which causes us to reiterate what has become a firm conviction: never underestimate the power of a woman. This advertising cliché, which has come to be a part of the American language, couldn't be a more accurate summation of the advice given but not as frequently accepted by the gentlemen who compose the top echelon of both major political parties. We've observed some of the results of this failure to properly estimate at elections over the past several years. A case in point, in our opinion is the most recent election where many of the top echelon

Thus if a delegation has 31 votes, for example, and the announced tally is 16 for A and 15 for B, a gain of but one vote from B to A can mean a shift of the entire 31 under the unit rule. In the 1952 gathering at Chicago, the Massachusetts Democratic delegation had one-half vote each. The Alabama delegates-at-large, including their United States Senators, had one-half vote each while the delegates from the Congressional districts had one full vote each. Michigan sent its delegates out with one-third vote for their delegates-at-large, one-half vote for some District delegates, one full vote for others. This hodge-podge of delegation voting is going to get a thorough going-over in Chicago, with the national leaders hoping to convince some of the states of its absurdity. If they prevail, radio and TV audiences will bless them.

My America

party leaders throughout the nation would have fared better had they taken the advice of some of the members of their respective State GOP Councils. Again we are convinced their powers of discernment frequently have proved superior to those of their male associates in the world of politics. This is not to say that the feminine protagonists of the GOP or the Democratic party policies are necessarily more astute than their male counterparts, but it has certainly been proven in many cases that their judgment might better have prevailed in the selection of candidates, for one thing. So we are constrained to advise the gentlemen of both parties—never, never underestimate.

George Sokolsky Says... Chaplin Acquired The Most Malevolent Form Of Snobbery When He Made Money

Cedric Belfrage, editor-in-exile, as he calls himself, of the "National Guardian," after his deportation from the United States, went to Vevey, Switzerland, to visit Charlie Chaplin who also cannot return to the United States. Chaplin, he says, told him: "I no longer have any use for America at all. I wouldn't go back there if Jesus Christ was President." Having rid himself of this profanity, Chaplin spoke to Belfrage for 14 hours, but it is not said that it was a continuous monologue. Among other things, Chaplin is reported by his confidante to have said this: "I don't believe in any country 'right or wrong' and all this talk about being grateful to America or any other country for opportunity is nonsense. People said I was 'ungrateful' because I never became a citizen—that I was biting the hand that fed me. Nonsense! I never got more than 30% of my income from America—all the rest from other countries—that showed my films. I told them I was a very well-paying guest of America. "In any case I never really felt part of America although I lived there so long, and living again in Europe is wonderful! wonderful! As for Hollywood, what can you say of an industry that has earned such fortunes out of the people and has never even thought of giving a million or so to endow a department of drama in a university or build a wing on a hospital? All it has ever produced for the public benefit is a race-track." Charlie Chaplin came to this country an unknown and ridiculous vaudeville actor who on occasion mimics a Parisian bum. There will long be dispute whether Chaplin's original character is great art but it was popular and successful. Chaplin got his opportunity in Hollywood, in the motion picture industry, and prospered. His arithmetic about the American market only producing 30 per cent of his income does not ring true during the years when he made his fortune, but true or false, had Hollywood not given him his opportunity, he might still be burlesquing drunkards in night clubs, vaudeville having by now disappeared. It can be said that he need not be grateful. That is a matter of personal disposition, but when he criticizes the motion picture industry for its inadequate contributions to charity and learning, we might point at him as one of the great men of that industry, not only as an actor but as an industrialist owning a studio. He was there; he is rich; he had his chance to contribute to charity and learning. There is no record that he contributed to either. There are plenty of records that others associated with the motion picture industry have contributed heavily to both charity and learning. Perhaps their press agents will take it up from here and give the details. Chaplin's name will not be found among those who gave to good causes. Chaplin lived in this country for about 40 years, but he says that he never really felt that he was part of America. Why did he stay here? He stayed until the law caught up with him. Why did he wait that long? Obviously because there was money in it. For Chaplin told Belfrage that he sent his wife, Oona, back to sell his property and to take $4,000,000 of securities out of a safe-deposit box in Los Angeles, which his wife carried off in a suitcase. Incidentally, Oona, who is the daughter of Eugene O'Neill, has renounced her American citizenship. One of Chaplin's complaints about the United States is that the Rockefeller and Vanderbilts chased after him. That will learn them! The rich tend to satisfy their curiosity by inviting the freakish to dinner and being amazed at their wisdom. It is a cheap form of entertainment, but Chaplin did not have to associate with the rich if he so loved the poor. There is no record, for instance, of his going down to the Salvation Army in Los Angeles to help redeem the poor wretches or that he joined in proletarian gatherings. Chaplin became a snob as soon as he made money—and cash produces the most malevolent form of snobbery.

A—The fight for first peek at the market quotations can bust up the family. Q—All my life I dreamed I might one day be a part owner of the Ford works. Now I may be able to get an interest. Am I still dreaming? A—You are suspended somewhere between a dream, a hope, an ambition and an economic situation. Consolidate your position. Q—I phoned my broker months ago and he said he would keep me in mind when the stock came out. Can I depend on it? A—You seem the type that believes in Santa Claus, rabbits' feet, four-leafed clovers and brokerage office memories. Q—Seven big brokerage houses will handle the issue. Doesn't this throw up a roadblock, send traffic into a narrow road and make it harder to make my objective? A—There has to be a system. Stay in line, carry a supply of hot coffee and don't foot your horn. Having driven the adults screw with jackpot programs, sponsors are now after the kids. Just tuned in on one where the prize is $500 worth of toys every Christmas until a moppet reaches voting age!!! If this isn't an all-out assault on Santa Claus, Clement Moore's "Night Before Christmas," and childhood's belief in a wonderful Christmas story, it will do until another one comes along. Better start teaching Junior now that the reindeer are named Prancer, Dancer and Sponsor. "Now Dasher, now Dancer, now Prancer and Cutie! On Jackpot, on Bopstop, on Big Haul, on Lootey!" We can even fancy the finish: "I heard him exclaim as he gave 'em the gun, 'It's an encore I do 'til the kid's twenty-one.'" Shades Of O. Henry New York City All Vanished

Maybe it sounds hard-hearted, but I'm sorry to hear they're talking about remodeling the Bowers in New York City—giving it a face-lifting, rehabilitating its human derelicts and changing the neighborhood into a slick, thriving business area. "We do not have an obligation to encourage that part of the tourist trade which specializes in grotesque and bizarre sights," Council President Abe Stark told a group of his fellow New Yorkers recently. "We do not have to provide free sidewalk shows to amuse out-of-towners." "I firmly believe that all of us in the city of New York have a mission, a responsibility and an obligation to destroy the Bowers as we know it today. I envision a new Bowers, a new center for commercial and industrial growth." Oh, all right, I suppose no sensible person should quarrel with that—especially an out-of-towner with no vote to cast for council presidents who envision a bigger and better future for Manhattan. Nobody wants to discourage a community from striving to improve itself and lighten the burdens of its unfortunate.

But I'm not so sure Mr. Stark can think of new commercial and industrial enterprises that will pay better dividends over the long pull than the old down-at-the-heels Bowers with its morbid attractions for visiting rubbernecks. In an age of stainless steel and neon lights New York is coming to look pretty much like any other business-prosperous city of the type a non-resident can take or leave alone. An outsider can't blame New Yorkers for wanting to reshape their environment to suit their own preferences, but they should keep in mind that there is a New York City that belongs not only to them but to the people of the great American hinterland. Chances are it's a New York City that no longer exists—at least one that would seem more familiar to the shades of O. Henry and O. O. McIntyre than to anybody who lives there today. But its mental image millions of Americans have cherished from away back—along with Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny—and they don't want any Johnnies-come-lately messing with it. Most of those millions have never seen the Bowers, and the others were probably disappointed when they did. But it remains one of the colorful keystones of that improbable image of the fabulous metropolis on the Hudson. Its ugly contours are softened by a clinging carpet of mossy sentiment; its human derelicts are too far away for the emptiness in their eyes to show; its shadowy recesses still resound with nostalgic song and laughter and the brave chantings of Horatio Alger newshoys. President Stark can wipe it out if he likes, but if he has any aspirations to national office he'd better really do right by those derelicts.

Try and Stop Me

The utterly unexpected success of one of those overblown, gaudy historical novels lifted its hitherto unknown author to sudden prominence. The spotlight and all the other trimmings proved a little too much for him. A more severe case of swell-headedness hasn't been seen on Publishers' Row in many a moon. It remained for a pert young girl to set "the genius" back on his heels, however, when he granted her an interview for her school paper. She listened to his boasting without cracking a smile; then said softly, "Why, I'll bet you're just the greatest writer in America today!" The new literary lion contrived a modest look, and chided, "Haven't you forgotten Hemingway, Faulkner, and O'Hara?" "Oh I wasn't thinking of you in that league," she told him—in front of a couple of mean, tall-telling associates, too. "They're really important writers!" That ended the interview. A lady friend of Mike Connolly's dropped plenty in the market last week. Her shopping bag fell out of her hand.

CUTIES

Stevenson Finds Being Out Front Painful Proposition

Chicago, November 18 — Adlai Stevenson is painfully learning that being out in front as a presidential candidate is a rough and hectic role. He is being blasted if he does, and blasted if he doesn't. The former Illinois Governor is ruefully telling Democratic chiefs, attending the National Committee's pre-convention meeting here, that leading supporters are belligerently pulling him both ways on highly sensitive issues. Graphic examples of his dilemma are the TNT-loaded questions of flexible vs. rigid farm price supports, and federal control over natural gas rates. Stevenson has powerful backers on both sides of these political bombshells. Before throwing his hat into the ring, he was able to sidestep definite commitment with the explanation that he was still "studying" these controversies. But now that he is an avowed candidate, he is caught squarely in the middle between his contending supporters. The following vividly illustrates exactly how uncomfortable Stevenson's position is: Senator Clinton Anderson, N. M., former Secretary of Agriculture, member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, a leader of the Farm Bureau Federation, largest of the agricultural organizations, and one of the first to come out for Stevenson, has written him sternly warning against adopting rigid 90 percent parity price supports. Anderson argues that no elections have been won by favoring this, and cites a number of instances to prove this claim. Directly opposite advice is coming from Senator Hubert Humphrey, also an Agriculture Committee member, and leader of the Minnesota Democratic-Farmer Labor Party, which is militantly supporting Stevenson in that state. Humphrey has also written him vigorously insisting that he declare for the rigid price supports which Anderson opposes. Wrote Humphrey: "Farmers want 90 percent of parity until something better can be found. If we are to carry the farm belt in 1956, that is exactly what we are going to have to give the farmers." Equally distressing is the cross-fire over the natural gas issue. Powerfully arrayed on one side are Speaker Sam Rayburn, who is throwing his influential support to Stevenson, and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson. The two potent Texans are spearheading the drive to enact legislation overriding the Supreme Court's decision that the Federal Power Commission has regulatory authority over natural gas in interstate commerce. Rayburn put this bill through the House last session, and Johnson is set to do the same thing in the Senate soon after it reconvenes in January.

Federal Reserve Auto Study

Automobile demand will not be so strong in 1956 as it has been in 1955, according to a recent Business Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia. An article in the Review, "The Outlook for Cars—Style, Deals and Credit," tells about the factors influencing the demand for cars. "Desire buying" replaced "need buying" sometimes in the middle of 1953. Since then, demand factors such as style and engineering innovations, dealers' selling ability, and credit terms have assumed increasing importance, according to the Business Review. Income changes always exert considerable influence on car buying. Possible tax relief in 1956 makes some increase in income seem likely. Present owners will have the wherewithal to buy new cars. How rapidly turnover takes place depends largely on how much "desire" is generated by style and engineering changes, by dealers' "deals," and by credit lures, the Bank says. Dealers' selling ability is a difficult thing to measure, but it is important. The continuing trek to the suburbs eases the car salesman's job. On the other hand, all sorts of new products are impressing themselves on consumers. Backyard swimming pools are already advertised as costing no more than a new automobile. The heat pump, a machine which cools a house in the summer and warms it in the winter, is being perfected. It will sell at about the price of a good used car. White goods salesmen say dishwashers and clothes dryers can be bought by most families if they just keep the family car a year or two after they have paid it off instead of trading it in on a new car. And room air conditioners are well worth the price of holding on to the old car an additional year or two, according to appliance sellers. But the car dealers are not pessimistic, the Bank says. They know they have a product that consumers love. They know, too, that they have high-quality salesmen on their team. They are betting they do a better selling job in 1956. Credit terms also will be of strategic importance next year. At present it seems unlikely that terms will be any easier in 1956. Some tightening seems a more likely possibility. If there is some tightening, it will probably slow the demand for automobiles. The Review concludes that with few major style changes and credit terms likely to tighten a little, even a better selling job by dealers and slightly higher income may not be enough to make 1956 so good a year for automobile sales as 1955.

Jointure Group Rejects Representation Plan

Committee Discusses Proposals

SWIFTWATER — The steering committee working to set up a Pocono Mountains Joint School system turned down a proposal for proportionate representation on the proposed joint committee last night at Paradise school here.

The proposal was submitted by Barrett Township's Earl Rose. It would have given Barrett three members; Pocono and Tobyhanna, two each and Coolbaugh, Jackson, Mount Pocono, Paradise and Tunkhannock, one each.

Barrett later offered a compromise plan which would have followed this schedule: For the first year of operation the joint committee would consist of all members of all boards in the jointure. From the end of this year to the time a new high school was built and turned over to the district, the above proposal would be followed. When the building became an actuality, the boards would have equal representation, one member each. This, too, was defeated.

At the end of the meeting, delegates agreed that discussion of the jointure should be continued. A full-scale meeting is planned for Tuesday night, Nov. 22 at Paradise school with all members of all eight boards involved attending.

Doctors Told Moderate Alcohol Drinking May Help Leg Cramps In Elderly People

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP) — Moderate alcohol drinking may help elderly people suffering from intermittent "cramps" of the legs, but doctors have to think of patients who are teetotalers or alcoholics, the Southern Medical Assn. was told today.

A blood vessel condition of the legs known as "intermittent claudication," in which blood vessels that have been narrowed by age result in cramp-like pains during physical effort, was described by Dr. Wingate Johnson of Winston-Salem, N. C. He told the closing session of the SMA 49th annual meeting:

Constricts Vessels
"This may cause so much pain in the calf muscles after the patient has walked a variable distance that he is forced to stop and rest."

"It is essential for the patient to stop smoking altogether," because nicotine acts as a constrictor of blood vessels -- but added:

"As partial compensation for this deprivation, however, he may be allowed to take a ounce or two of whisky or brandy three times a day since alcohol is one of the best vaso dilators--dilators of blood vessels--available."

"Piscoline or a xathine derivative, such as aminophylline, may be substituted for alcoholic beverages if the patient is a teetotaler, or an alcoholic."

The physician said that "intermittent claudication" is more common among men than women.

Elsewhere in his talks, which dealt with problem of blood circulation in persons over 60, the doctor said:

"The pathologists have offered what is, to men of my age, an encouraging observation -- namely that cerebral arteriosclerosis--narrowing of blood vessels supplying the brain--does not necessarily produce a corresponding degree of mental deterioration."

Mental Deterioration
"It is possible for an individual who has always maintained wide interests and has kept his mind active to carry on in spite of extensive cerebral arteriosclerosis."

"Sooner or later, however, some degree of mental deterioration is inevitable in anyone who lives long enough."

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Yesterday was no day to wear a big hat even if you were going to the Garden Club luncheon as quite a few members discovered, chasing their hats over hill and dale. There was some question too, about whether the cars were flying low or riding high in the wind as they followed the ridge road to the luncheon.

Well, anyway, everybody seemed to arrive with a good appetite—and fine complexions, too. And had themselves a very good time, recognizing old friends in Dr. Leister's birds.

The placecards were particularly attractive, I thought. Two brown oak leaves stapled together so they'd stand up in white ink. The corsages, of course, were lovely as befits flower arrangers de luxe.

What I needed afterward was a space arranger—but the only way I could think of to save space was to cut out the pictures and cut down the jabber. Period.

Apron Social Held at St. John's Parish House

Bartonsville—A highly successful apron social, sponsored by the Crusader class of St. John's Lutheran Sunday school, was held at the St. John's parish home on Friday night, November 11. A social time and games were enjoyed. A door prize was awarded to Mrs. Samuel Dunbar and the guess cake went to Helen Bobby. Game prizes were given to Rev. John Bergstresser, for winning the turkey contest; Robert Field, for the memory contest and Claude Cyphers, for the Thanksgiving game.

Refreshments of assorted sandwiches, pickles, tea and coffee were served buffet style from a table decorated with chrysanthemums in shades of red and yellow. Mrs. Beatrice Swink and Mrs. Verdon Frailey, the most recent grandmothers in the Crusader class, poured at the tea table.

Among those present at the party were Rev. John Bergstresser, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cyphers, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Field, Mrs. Joseph Dunbar, Mrs. Ruth Smiley, Mrs. Eibel Reinert, Mrs. Maude Bush, Mrs. Haviland Heller, Mrs. Beatrice Swink, Mary Fedin, Mary De Santo, Rose De Santo, Helen Bobby, Peggy Van, Emma Dunbar, Joanne Dunbar, Sarah Jane Cyphers, Kathryn Cyphers, Russell Feiker, Joseph Starnier, Ronald Swink, John Field and Tommy Field.

Many persons unable to attend sent contributions and the members of the Crusader class wish to extend their sincere thanks to all who helped to make the apron social such an outstanding success. Proceeds will be used to ward payment for the furnace recently installed in the church.

Ed Hoffner President Of Morey PTA

The meeting was opened with recital of the Rosary, led by Miss Joan Riley.

Preliminary plans were made for the children's Christmas party. Mrs. Connors and Mrs. Broderick were appointed the Committee to purchase the gifts. Any Parish member wishing to help with or donate towards the party are asked to contact Mrs. Connors.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

After seventeen years and a march of 255,000,000 dimes, we have a vaccine for polio. The story of the work that made this vaccine possible has been recounted for children by Dorothy and Phillip Sterling in POLIO PIONEERS, published by Doubleday yesterday.

The book covers the great pioneers in science who paved the way for Dr. Jonas Salk's discovery: Antony van Leeuwenhoek, who made the first microscope; Louis Pasteur, who discovered microbes; Dr. John Enders, who found the way to grow polio virus in bottles. It describes the behind-the-scenes work in laboratories, how the virus is grown in rich soup in steadily rocking bottles and is tested in roller tubes, monkeys, and mice. POLIO PIONEERS is a story of big figures: how 30,000 experimental monkeys were collected on a special farm in South Carolina and tested at a cost of 13,700,000 dimes to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; how 1,830,000 children were given shots in the 1954 testing of the Salk vaccine, the biggest field test in history.

The Sterlings wrote and talked to scientists all over the country and used the full resources of the National Foundation in collecting their data. Not only facts but pictures were found: old prints, illustrating events like the polio panic in 1916; photos of today's research. Myron Ehrenberg, photographer for Mrs. Sterling's previous books, took many pictures to fill in where the right photos could not be found.

The authors wrote POLIO PIONEERS for the seven to eleven-year-olds, who have had a big stake in the fight against the disease. Dorothy Sterling has written five nonfiction books (including WALL STREET and THE STORY OF MOSSES, FERNS, AND MUSHROOMS) and two mysteries for this age group. Phillip Sterling is with the publicity department of CBS-Radio.

This book would undoubtedly be worthy of your consideration for Christmas giving to any boy or girl in the specified age range. It would also be interesting reading for any adult... and you'd be surprised how many adults do buy these enlightening junior books for light, informative reading.

This particular book is not stocked at Wyckoff's, but could be ordered by the girls of our stationery book, who are always happy to serve you. However, we do carry hundreds of Junior books by Grosset Dunlap, Winston, and Random House—be sure to see them!

Discount Rate Boosted After Market Closes

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 (AP) — The stock market turned down today as it neared a new record high mark.

The setback was small but nevertheless it was the greatest in three weeks. During that time the market drove ahead strongly to within scoring distance of the historic high set Sept. 23.

After the close today, the Federal Reserve Board okayed boosts in the discount rate of its banks in New York, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland and San Francisco to 2½ per cent from 2½ per cent. It was the fourth time this year that the rate has been hiked, and it put the banks' charges for lending money at the highest level since 1934.

The stock market started slightly higher but ran into selling difficulties almost immediately. Air-crafts and radio-televisions managed rallies during the day, but the rest of the market refused to go along.

The decline carried prices down around 3 points at the outside but there were some gainers of 3 to 6 points in the list, a result of selective buying.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped back 50 cents at $179.80. The record high Sept. 23 was $181.50. Both the industrial component of the average and the rails were off 80 cents while utilities remained unchanged.

RONNIE WARD, the Bob Burns of the Shawnee Inn and Country Club professional golf staff, will marry Miss Irene Jursek in Allentown on Saturday, November 26. The wedding will take place at Saint Catherine of Siena Church, 18th and Turner Sts. This column wishes to join Ronnie and his host of friends in wishing him the best of luck in future years. Don't forget your tickets for the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg football game. They are now on sale.

Reports coming out of the Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg football camps indicate that scouting reports will be of little value to the respective teams. According to rumors making the rounds each of the squads is making plenty of changes for the Thanksgiving Day grid battle at Gordon Giffels Field. Neither coaching staff is sparing the horses in making an all-out bid to finish the campaign with a victory.

Clyde Lessig, former Pocono Mountains League baseball star, used to play with Mickey Vernon, now of the Boston Red Sox, when each was a member of the class "D" Eastern Shore League. Evan Reese, injured football star at East Stroudsburg High, has turned down an opportunity to move into a private or semi-private room at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital. He prefers to remain in Ward L.

The football program for the East Stroudsburg - Stroudsburg clash on Thanksgiving Day is now at the printers. It is doubtful that Co-Captain Gene Plaza will be able to play against Stroudsburg next Thursday. Gene won't have the cast removed from his injured knee until Saturday. This will give him very little time to prepare for the big contest. Sam Everitt will be one of the spectators at the Lehigh-Lafayette football game on Saturday.

Bill Leckonby, Lehigh's football coach, informed this reporter on Wednesday that the annual Lafayette-Lehigh clash would be a sellout by kickoff time. It is quite possible that the position of the softball fields at Stroudsburg Playground may be changed next season. The change has been made necessary because of the reconstruction of the playground due to damage inflicted by last August's flood. Altoona and West Chester are battling Stroudsburg for the Keystone Amateur Softball Association statewide tournament to be held next August.

The association originally expected to make the announcement of its tournament site this month, but the meeting has been postponed until Sunday, December 4. The meeting will be held in Hershey and there will be at least one representative from the Stroudsburg area present. The Monroe County Softball League is planning several constructive changes in its by-laws and constitution.

District 11, of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association, will hold its annual banquet at Tamaqua on Monday, at 6:30 p. m. The affair, as usual, will be held at the Zion Lutheran Church, Greenwood and Mauch Chunk Sts. The Oxford Lions, one of the better teams in nearby sections of New Jersey, would like very much to play basketball games with teams from the Pocono Mountains area. Anyone interested is urged to write Jack Collins, 100 Broad St., Hightstown, N. J.

East Stroudsburg fans are hopeful the fact that their Cavaliers haven't lost two straight football games this season holds up through Thanksgiving. East Stroudsburg lost three contests this year, but after the first two setbacks the Cavaliers bounced back with a victory. They dropped a 34-0 verdict to Nazareth in their most recent outing. Stroudsburg's most narrow margin of victory was by a 15-14 in 1951, while Eastburg's slimmest victory margin was 7-0 in 1952.

Mary Jane Zimmerman, former field hockey goalie at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, was named to the first Mid-East field hockey team which will take part in the National Tournament at Chambersburg, Pa. a week from today. This reporter would like very much to thank a certain group of students for their recent nice letters. It's not too often that letters of this type are received by a newspaperman.

Commercial 'C' Rolls

Alleys one and two — Kitty's Tavern vs Cole's Drug Store.
Alleys three and four — Lanterman's Funeral Home vs Tru-Matic.
Alleys five and six — Regina Hotel vs Kreamie Ice Cream.

Stroudsburg Little League Nominates Official Slate

Election To Take Place Next Month

NOMINATIONS of officers highlighted last night's re-organizational meeting of the Stroud Little League at the Monroe County YMCA. The nominations left only two offices in doubt in the election which will take place at the next meeting Thursday, December 8.

Jack Mullins was guaranteed a second term in office as president when he was the sole nomination for that office. The same is true of Ray Walters, vice president.

The only offices for which there will be a contest are those of secretary and treasurer, Russell Bond and Willard Kintz were nominated for the office of secretary, while Edward Lawson, Edward Williams, James Coleman and Daniel Warner will be on the treasurer's ballot.

Another of last night's highlights was the discussion on the condition of the field damaged by flood waters last August.

Committee
Ray Walters, Pete Kemmerer and Ray Davies were named to the field committee and will file a report on repairs that will be necessary to put the field back in playing condition.

Security Trust won the first half championship last season and Peoples Club the second half. They will each retain the title trophy for a period of six months. Stroudsburg Little League was unable to hold its post-season playoffs because of the flood.

All graduating Little Leaguers will receive trophies to be presented at a later date. All 12-year olds will also turn in their uniforms at the time of the trophy presentation.

Commission Bans Pilots

SCRANTON, Nov. 17 — The Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission today suspended the managers of lightweight champion Wallace Bud Smith and said it expected the action to be recognized nationwide.

James H. "Sleepy Jim" Crowley announced the suspension of Anthony Ferrante and Carmen Graziano, coplayers of Smith, Joey Giardello, middleweight contender, and numerous other fighters.

Crowley listed this four point indictment against Graziano and Ferrante:

1. That their conduct and behavior had rendered them unfit and incompetent by reason of their habits.
2. That they had been guilty of unprofessional and unethical conduct.
3. That they had by their conduct and behavior conducted themselves in a manner detrimental to the best interest of boxing generally and to the public interest and general welfare.
4. That they were associating and consorting with criminals, gamblers, bookmakers and persons of similar ill-repute and with persons of no known or visible means of livelihood, and that they had themselves engaged and were engaging in similar pursuits and conduct.

Graziano and Ferrante were given a hearing last Sept. 12 to show cause why their licenses should not be suspended or revoked. The commission's decision to suspend their licenses is the result of that hearing.

Noren Goes Under Knife

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17 — New York Yankee baseball slugger Irv Noren will undergo operations on both knees tomorrow, Del Webb, co-owner of the club, said tonight.

The surgery will be done at St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica. Webb said he had been assured that Noren's knees "will be as good as new" after the operation.

Gordon TKOs Ward
CANTON, Ohio, Nov. 17 — Middleweight Bobby Gordon, 164, of Akron hung a technical knockout on Detroit's Moses Ward, 162 tonight after Ward, the favorite, suffered a severe cut over the right eye at 40 seconds of the fourth round.

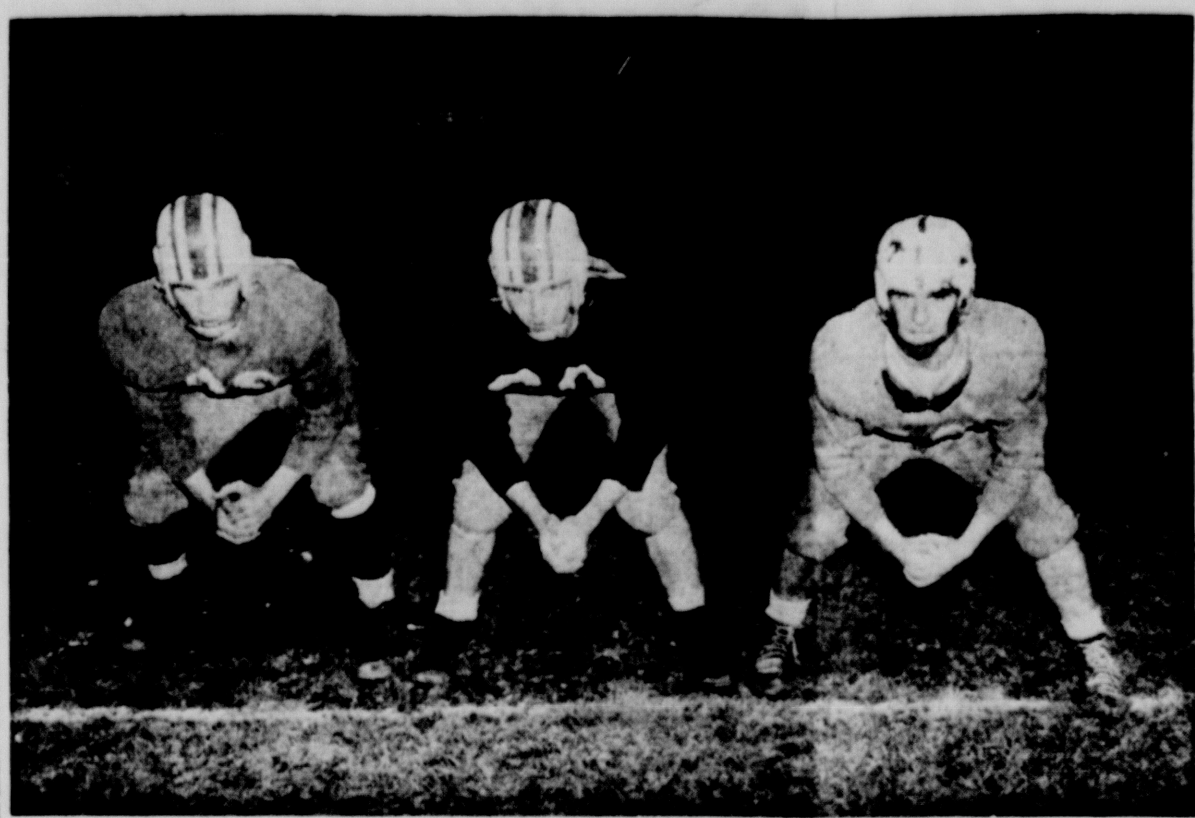

Spanish Champ Wins
BRUSSELS, Nov. 17 — European featherweight champion Fred Galina of Spain outpointed Joseph Janssens, former Belgium lightweight champ, in a 10-round bout tonight. Galina weighed 132½, Janssens 135.

Cager Suffers Fatal Injury

STAMFORD, Conn., Nov. 17 — A Stamford High School sophomore was injured fatally last night while trying out for the school's basketball team.

Medical Examiner Rudolf A. Colmers attributed the death of Edward W. Tynes, 15, to a skull fracture.

School authorities said the boy fell, striking his head on the floor of the school gymnasium. Later, when he became nauseated, he was removed to Stamford Hospital.

Sports Play Major Role In Education Maguire Tells Football Players At Rotary Luncheon

"PLAYING FIELDS ARE AN area of education as surely as the class room," Dr. Frank P. Maguire told adults and students entertained at the Rotary Club luncheon at the Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday.

The Stroudsburg Rotary Club held its annual "football luncheon," during which both the Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg High School football teams, who clash at Gordon Giffels Field next Thursday, were honored guests.

In developing the individual, the speaker felt that it is as necessary to develop the physical as well as the mental.

"The football field and the basketball court are real cradles of democracy," Maguire, commissioner of Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association official, stated.

Lessons Learned
"Play the game because you love it," Maguire continued. "The lessons learned in the game may be as important as the lessons learned in life," the national athletic figure added.

In conclusion Dr. Maguire said, "If you think you are beaten, you are. The man who wins is the man who thinks he can." Marty Baldwin, former East Stroudsburg State Teachers College and West Chester State Teachers College athlete, introduced the guest speaker.

Earl F. Groner and Carl Secor, superintendent of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg schools respectively, introduced school officials and members of the coaching staff.

John Whitehead, Stroudsburg coach, and Jack Kist, East Stroudsburg mentor, introduced members of their squads.

Harry Albert led a song session and Joe Small, club president, ruled over the meeting.

Warren "Mag" Loney was named chairman of a committee to handle details of "Booster Night," Jack Newell, Sam Everitt, George Metropoulos, John Whitehead and Byron "Chick" Miller were also named to the committee.

A letter was read by secretary Don "Tony" Gilpin from T. Manning "Cap" Curtis, athletic director at Stroudsburg High, thanking the association for its recent football "Booster Night."

Tom Somers, association president, ruled over the gathering and reported that the flood fund started by the club is now over $7,500. The next meeting is slated for Thursday, December 15.

Bangor Adds 14 Players To Varsity

BANGOR — Coach Granville "Granny" Evans has added 14 members of the Bangor High School Jayvee squad to his varsity contingent to aid in the step-up in drills for the season-ending traditional football game with Pen Argyl High School on Thanksgiving Day.

In preparation for the "big game," Evans has introduced several new maneuvers and additional work on conditioning, offense, and defense. With several injuries making a huge dent in an otherwise limited squad, Evans has had only 16 to 18 members of the varsity squad working out for the past few weeks. With the addition of the Jayvees, more attention is being given to heavy work and scrimmages.

Returning
Kermit Lalbar, senior and starting tackle early in the season, who has been out of action with an injured neck ever since the East Stroudsburg contest, returned to uniform this week and may bolster the line considerably for the coming contest. J. L. Williams, regular quarterback, has also returned to action after a two-week absence. It appears that Bangor will be at full strength with the exception of Keith Jones who suffered a broken ankle in the Copley contest four weeks ago.

Byrne Top Comeback

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 — Tommy Byrne, 36, the southpaw brought back from the minors by the New York Yankees after being considered washed up as a major league pitcher, easily won the American League comeback-of-the-year honors for 1955.

The alumnus of Wake Forest, currently on a Far Eastern tour with the Yanks, received 80 of a possible 99 votes in a poll of the Baseball Writers Assn. of America conducted by The Associated Press.

Spread
The remaining 19 votes were spread among 10 players. Boston's Ted Williams and Kansas City's Vic Power received four each. Detroit's Billy Hoelt three and George Kell of the Chicago White Sox two.

Single votes went to Sherman Lollar and Minnie Minoso of the White Sox, Enos Slaughter of the Athletics, Mickey Vernon of Washington, Jimmy Piersall of the Red Sox and Phil Rizzuto of the Yankees.

Last Day For Banquet Tickets

SAVING — Joe Paparella, American League umpire, will lead a slate of speakers at the Pocono Mountains Baseball League banquet here at the Lake House tomorrow night.

Anyone still wishing to make reservations for the banquet may do so by telephoning the Lake House management today. The banquet is scheduled to get underway at 6:30 p. m.

YMCA Cagers In Action

STROUDSBURG YMCA, this area's entry in the Blue Mountain Basketball League, will play a practice game with Weissport on the Monroe County YMCA court today at 8 p. m.

Little League Association Seeks Assistance

MOUNTAINHOME—The importance of Little League baseball in Barrett Township and the need for help in furthering its cause was the number one topic of discussion at last night's meeting of the Barrett Association For Little League Baseball.

The meeting was held here at the Barrett Branch YMCA.

Henry "Hank" Shaller, association president, reported that there is an apparent disinterest in the sport at this time.

Agree
Shaller and those others in attendance at last night's meeting were agreed that work must be done at this time to make a successful season next year.

Discussion of property, by-laws and means of creating new interest took up a great deal of the time. The next meeting will be held on Monday, December 19, at Barrett High School.

Turkey Day Rivals Enter Home Stretch Of Practices

STROUDSBURG AND EAST Stroudsburg will finish the heavy work today and then taper off for their 11th and what many people believe will be the most thrilling football game in their history on Thanksgiving Day. The kickoff is on the agenda for 10 a. m.

Coach John Whitehead announced yesterday that the heavy work was over for the Mountaineers, but the likeable coach sent his charges through a brisk workout despite the frigid temperatures that hung over Gordon Giffels Field, where the battle will be fought next Thursday.

Whitehead revealed that Ronald "Super" Phillips would definitely be out of uniform for the "Battle of the Boroughs." The hard running back suffered a shoulder separation midway in the current campaign.

Whitehead also revealed that sophomore guard Bob Kassay was on the doubtful list. Kassay, one of the mainstays in the Stroudsburg line this season, suffered a knee injury in practice last week and has been on the sidelines ever since. Whitehead said that "he doubted very much" that Kassay would play on Thanksgiving Day.
